2 Dealing with Growing Pains

Strike-outs happen. It's true. We don't always get it right every time. But every time we "strike out" we learn something: We identify areas for growth. Things we can work on. Things we can improve. For example, if you didn't get the grade you wanted on your last math test, you know you have to study harder next time. Or if you didn't make your foul shot at the basketball game, you know you have to practice your foul shot.
